

Dr. Sarah Chen, a renowned researcher at Stanford University in Palo Alto, California, published groundbreaking research on artificial intelligence in collaboration with Professor Michael Johnson from MIT. The research, funded by the National Science Foundation with a grant of .5 million, focused on neural network architectures.